RECTOR
of the Jagiellonian University
announces a competitive selection process for the post of as ASSISTANT PROFESSOR
(POST-DOC)
in the research staff / research and faculty staff member group

at the Institute of Sociology
of the Faculty of Philosophy
academic field: sociology

The Jagiellonian University in Kraków invites applicants for an Assistant Professor (Post-Doc researcher) position in the project CrimScapes: Navigating Citizenship in the European Landscapes of Criminalisation funded by the New Opportunities for Research Funding Agency Co-operation in Europe (NORFACE) within the programme 'Democratic Governance in the Turbulent Age' <https://www.norface.net/project/crimscapes/>.

CrimScapes project

The CrimScapes project explores the expanding application of criminal law, crime control measures and imaginaries of (il)legality as both responses to, and producers of, the politics of threat and uncertainty that are currently expanding across the European region. Given the inherent tensions between democratic processes and ever-expanding legal regulations, the project investigates this growing reliance on criminal technologies and institutions as a challenge to the participatory nature of democratic societies, and as possible symptoms and causes of the general sense of turbulence that has come to dominate much of economic, social and political life. It works to analytically grasp the motivations behind, and challenges and implications of, criminalisation for the variety of actors and practices that (re-)shape entangled crimsapes - i.e. landscapes of criminalisation. With the support of secondary literature, archival research and interviews, project members will develop - for a variety of publics - CrimeLines (i.e. genealogical timelines) of seven European crimsapes (of drug use, migration, sex work, infectious diseases, the prison context, sexual and gender identities, and hate speech). Additional ethnographic fieldwork will help to conceptualise - in publications and an EthnoGraphic Novel - the strategies, relations and citizenship dynamics of the implicated actors as they navigate democratic participation and freedoms with legal regulation and measures of crime control. Extracting from this empirical data, researchers will then highlight and open for discussion - with policy makers and other stakeholders - documented dilemmas of democratic governance so as to enhance the lived realities, rights-claims and desired futures of all implicated actors.

Candidate

We are looking for a candidate for a fully funded Assistant Professor (Post-Doctoral) position to study the intersection of criminality and sexuality and gender in Central and Eastern Europe. The position will be offered for a fixed term of three years starting 2 November 2020 (or as agreed). The successful candidate will be employed at the Institute of Sociology of the Jagiellonian University in Krakow and is expected to work full time on a case study focused on the criminalisation of sexuality/gender in Central and Easter Europe. Candidates are expected to propose a specific topic, subject area and the geographic scope for the case study in their application.

Qualifications

The competitive selection process is open for all individuals who meet the requirements set out in Articles 113 and 116.2.3 of the Act of 20 July 2018 – Law on Higher Education and Science – and who meet the following eligibility criteria according to § 165 of the Statute of the Jagiellonian University:
